

Tips For Creative Thinking

Instead of discarding a bad idea outright, ask yourself, "What is the good idea within this bad idea?" Reserve judgment until you've thoroughly explored its potential.

Challenge the typical "either" - "or" decision-making approach. Consider whether there's room for "both" and "too." Sometimes, the whole can be greater than the sum of its parts.

Creativity is not about external awards or recognition but about the inner joy it brings. It doesn't always require reinventing the wheel; simple breakthroughs in personal relationships, slight shifts in direction, new experiences, or unfamiliar adventures can all spark creativity.

If you have the belief that you've seen and done it all, remember that the spark in your eyes and heart validates your existence. You can remain youthful at heart, regardless of age. Every individual has a future, regardless of their age. Only eternity has none.

Even if you feel untalented and lack inspiration, you can still cultivate creativity through systematic learning of techniques and acquiring thinking tools. These methods are accessible and enjoyable and can be obtained by participating in the lectures, workshops, and courses that I offer.
